

Mike Wallace

Managing Director
BrownFlynn

As Managing Director, Mike is responsible for expanding BrownFlynn's market engagement across North America, developing new and existing strategic partnerships, providing innovative corporate responsibility and sustainability solutions to clients and helping shape the strategic direction of the Firm. Having helped establish and then direct GRI's North American operations from 2010 to 2014, Mike was instrumental in driving sustainability and reporting across the North American economy.

Mike's 20 years of international experience in the sustainability field provides BrownFlynn clients and strategic partners with a global view of the sustainability landscape. Having given expert testimony to the European Commission, U.S. Securities Exchange Commission, Environmental Protection Agency and the General Services Administration, and having presented on the topic of sustainability and reporting at an array of executive level conferences and meetings, Mike's expertise in the field is highly regarded and valued by a wide range of colleagues and organizations.

Mike enjoys traveling, cycling, skiing, and relaxing at home with his wife, Clair. He has traveled as far south as Tasmania, Australia; as far North as the Isles of Lewis and Harris, Scotland; as remote as the Galapagos Islands; as low as Death Valley; and as high as the Himalayas. He looks forward to continuing his exploration of the world and our field.
